NEWS FROM AROUND THE WORLD OF DISNEY

Walt Disney Pictures TO INFINITY AND BEYOND

On Wednesday, November 22, the art of motion pictures shall be forever changed with the premiere of a revolutionary new film—Toy Story. The first computer generated animated movie in history, Toy Story is a stunner—an incredible, breathtaking picture that breaks new ground technologically while boasting a superb story, great characters, and wonderful voices—all hallmarks of Disney's grand tradition of animation.

Toy Story the story is a classic fable about the secret life of toys when their young master is out of the room. The king of toys is Woody, a pull-string cowboy who has been his young master's favorite for years, ruling the roost over such colleagues as Mr. Potato Head and Slinky Dog. But then comes one special birthday, and Woody finds himself suddenly displaced by the greatest action figure of all time—Buzz Lightyear, an intergalactic superhero who doesn't even believe he's a toy.

So remember, you read about it here first. November 22, the premiere of Toy Story. And yes, animation fans, that is Tom Hanks voicing Woody and Tim Allen bringing Buzz Lightyear to life. Take the whole family. You'll be a hero.

Harvest Festivals

IT'S HARVEST TIME, FROM THE MOMENT that first plump pre-Halloween pumpkin lands—still uncarved—on the front porch until we celebrate Thanksgiving with all the trimmings. Fall's harvest rituals celebrate one of our oldest pleasures: the simple joy of reaping the fruits of our labors.

Fall is also a season of simple delights: piles of bright red leaves on the lawn; a trip to the pumpkin patch; the thrill of looking at a clear, cold night sky and finding the Big Dipper and the Milky Way; carving pumpkins and gathering family and friends around a turkey-laden table.

In this issue of "Families," you'll also find practical solutions to some of the season's real-world problems, from making a last-minute Halloween costume to turning Thanksgiving leftovers into a delicious and quick work-week meal. It's also time to prepare for the flu season. Learn how to foster your child's creativity. And find out how easy it is to take the family stargazing.

Have a happy harvest!

FOSTERING CREATIVITY

What is creativity? The ability to build something out of nothing? Is it problem solving? Can creativity be taught?

These are some of the questions researchers are asking as they seek new ways to foster creativity in children. While talents and propensities differ among kids, experts agree that all children are inherently creative.

But creativity requires encouragement. How can parents stimulate their children's explorative, artistic, and intellectual powers?

Jonathan Plucker, a researcher with The National Research Center on the Gifted and Talented, in Charlottesville, says parents need to understand that creativity manifests itself in many forms. Children may display creativity in areas which parents are unfamiliar with. For example, a parent who understands the genius of software design may not at first appreciate the creativity of a child playing with clay.

Parents should know that creativity requires an investment of hard work and tenacity to develop necessary skills. This is especially true as children mature. "There is a place for the sudden lightning bolt,"

Pucker says of creativity, "but it's very, very rare."

Kids also need carefully-crafted feedback to allow them to fine-tune their efforts. This, Plucker says, helps prepare children for the real world, in which new ideas are questioned, defended, and refined. Some parents are so concerned with potentially lowering their children's self esteem that they routinely tell their children that everything they do is terrific.

Yet constructive criticism is enormously helpful to children as well as to adults. For example, if a child presents a parent with a brown piece of clay that looks more like a dead duck than the flying unicorn the young artist imagined, the parent can ask, "Tell me why you chose that color clay?" or "Do you think it looks more like it's sleeping than flying?" From feedback, children

MARIE OSMOND INTRODUCES "ROSIE & RAGS"

Marie Osmond has created "Rosie and Rags", a playful new addition to her Marie Osmond Fine Porcelain Collectible Doll line. This charming pair of rag doll twins with their unique, hand-painted, fine bisque porcelain faces and hands, and red button noses are sure to capture your heart!

Whether swinging from the big apple tree in the backyard, or any other adventure that one could imagine, "Rosie and Rags" cherub faces are simply irresistible.

Marie collaborated with her good friend and award-winning sculptor, Beverly Stoehr, to create a pair of refreshingly unique dolls that are sure to delight both the novice as well as the expert doll collector. And what child wouldn't adore having "Rosie and Rags" sitting on their bed or night table! Each doll comes with their own Marie Osmond logo bracelet, handtag, and personalized certificate of authenticity especially written for each doll by Marie, herself.

"Rosie and Rags" are simply irresistible with their bright red yarn wigs and adorable red, white and blue outfits. Their combination cloth and pellet bodies were designed specifically so they can be easily displayed in a seated position. Both dolls have the traditional rag doll, soft sculpted, red and white candy-striped legs, and black shoes.

Give yourself, or someone you love the Marie Osmond "Rosie and Rags" dolls. They're twice the charm and twice as much fun!

THE TORTILLA BOOK

"In the spring the black earth is worked by brown hands/that plant yellow seeds,/which become green plants rustling in soft wind/and make golden corn to dry in hot sun and be ground into flour..."

The tortilla seems like such a simple food: flat, unleavened, and mild. But in Gary Paulsen's The Tortilla Factory (Harcourt Brace & Company, 1995), the cycle of life—from seed to plant to tortilla—is eloquently chronicled in a beautifully illustrated book for all ages.

Slowing Down in a Speeded Up World (Conari Press, $8.95), by San Francisco Chronicle columnist Adair Lara, is a collection of the many ways in which people find precious, peaceful moments amidst the busy-ness of everyday life. It also includes inspirational quotes that range from Emily Dickinson to Lily Tomlin.

begin to learn how their work is experienced by others.

Plucker also advocates exposing children to a vast array of creative outlets. Take them to all types of museums, give them a selection of art materials, play them music—Bach, Beethoven, the Beatles. All of this helps children to understand the wide range of ways in which they can express their creativity. "Expose them to everything," says Plucker. "Something will grab their interest."

Sometimes such exposure just involves building on an interest a child already possesses. Sheila Ellison, author of 365 Days of Creative Play (Sourcebooks, Inc., $12.95), remembers how her mother noticed Ellison's interest in making collages and then showed her examples of stained glass in the encyclopedia to stimulate her to use shapes and colors in a new way.

Ellison believes many children lack the

CLOSET COUTURE: LAST-MINUTE HALLOWEEN COSTUMES

IT CAN FEEL LIKE A FULL-SCALE CRISIS: the stores are all out of Mighty Morphin Power Ranger costumes, or you realize you've let the planning slide until there's no time at all to find or sew what your children have in mind. Don't despair: there are some fabulous outfits right in your own closet, if you know what to look for.

FOR A SPY use a trench coat—collar turned up, of course—and a hat. For props use a walkie talkie or a hand-held tape recorder.

FOR A HOBO grab an old sport coat, some oversized pants, and a scruffy old hat. Tie a bandanna to a large stick.

CREATE A FORTUNE TELLER by using a head scarf, large clip-on earrings, dime-store necklaces, and a puffy blouse with a gathered skirt. Add a handful of playing cards, and the look's complete.

A PIRATE needs only a t-shirt and pants, paired with a dime-store moustache, an eye patch, a single, round earring, and a narrow scarf tied around the forehead. Add a cardboard sword.

A LOOK OF ELEGANT and feminine maturity can be pulled together with a big hat, gloves, a pretty purse, make-up, and jewelry.

TREATS FOR TRICKSTERS

THE EASY PART OF THESE CUPCAKES is making them from a mix. The imaginative part is decorating them with Halloween candies. The fun part is watching the goblins gulp them down. Got milk?

HALLOWEEN CUPCAKES

- 1 (16 ounce) package pound cake mix
- 2 eggs
- 3/4 cup light brown sugar, packed
- 1 cup cooked or canned pumpkin
- 1/2 cup water
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 2 teaspoons poppy seeds
- licorice frosting (recipe follows)

licorice dots, candy corn, or other candies

In a mixing bowl combine cake mix, eggs, sugar pumpkin, water, baking soda, poppy seeds. Beat on medium speed for 3 minutes.

Pour batter into 18 paper-lined muffin cups. Bake at 325 degrees F for approximately 20 minutes or until golden. Cool 10 minutes. Remove from pan and place on wire rack until completely cooled.

Spread with licorice frosting and decorate with candy.

LICORICE FROSTING: Cream together 1/2 cup softened butter or margarine, 3 cups sifted powder sugar, 1 teaspoon anise extract, and 2 tablespoons milk until smooth.

motivation to take a box of crayons out of a cupboard and design a village or create stained glass window designs. Parents, she says, sometimes have to suggest simple, do-able projects to get their kids going.

Parents also have to display some fascination with their own world, Plucker adds. Kids who see their parents passionately pursuing interests—gardening, quilting, painting, cake baking, cycling, music, photography—will be more likely to seek creative outlets for themselves. If children never see their parents doing anything creative, how will they learn to pursue projects?

As children grow, it can also be helpful to connect them to adults who are involved in their area of interest. Jonathan Plucker remembers when he coordinated a gifted program for a New England high school: he regularly matched students with community mentors. For example, he arranged a field visit to a local veterinarian for a student interested in large animal medicine.

Experts say fostering creativity should be an effort integrated with daily life: stimulating the whole family to enjoy their varied interests while exposing one another to new and different experiences.

Body Wars

TOP TACTICS FOR FIGHTING FLU

The flu wouldn't be so bad if you didn't have to work, look after your children, and shoulder the rest of the responsibilities required by family life in the '90s. But the fact is, not only does the flu cause fever, sore throat, muscle aches, headache, coughing, and utter exhaustion, the virus also forces millions of people to put their lives on hold.

That's why the number of people opting for the flu vaccine has doubled in the last five years, with more than 40 million Americans getting the $10-$25 inoculation every fall, according to Nancy Arden, RN, MN, chief of the Influenza Epidemiology Section for the Centers for Disease Control (CDC) in Atlanta. "Flu prevention is up because people don't want to get sick," Arden says.

"Influenza is a terrible inconvenience—people are often out of work for a week."

The vaccine is recommended for children over six months of age and for adults, unless they're allergic to eggs. The vaccine is created from highly purified, egg-grown viruses that have been made non-infectious.

Arden says more and more families are getting their children vaccinated against the flu, mostly to minimize the challenges imposed by having sick kids to care for when parents are working outside the home.

Even if you opt for the vaccine, there's still a chance you'll get the flu, depending on whether the specific circulating virus matches the vaccine. Flu shots are developed based on world-wide surveillance, focused especially in China, where specific viral variations have recently been regularly discovered. When there is a good match between vaccine and the season's circulating viruses, the vaccine prevents illness in approximately 70% of healthy people under 65, according to the CDC.

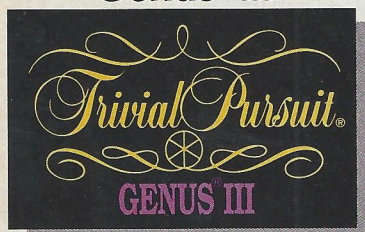

If you get the flu, two prescription drugs, amantadine and rimantadine, can reduce symptoms and shorten the course of the illness—if they're taken in the first day or two. Both drugs, which are effective only against type A flu viruses, are available in pill form and are taken twice a day for five to seven days. (Amantadine is not recommended for people with kidney disease.)

Arden recommends that flu victims closely match over-the-counter cough and pain remedies to their precise symptoms.

CHOOSING CAR SEATS

MORE CHILDREN in the United States are killed and disabled in car crashes than from any other cause of injury. To reduce the risk, every state requires that infants and children must ride buckled up in car seats and seat belts. The American Academy of Pediatrics now has a free booklet of guidelines for parents, "1995 Family Shopping Guide to Car Seats," which provides detailed information on what to look for in car seats as well as comprehensive comparisons between a wide range of seats. For a copy, send a self-addressed, stamped business-sized envelope to: American Academy of Pediatrics, Dept. C., "1995 Car Seat Guide," P.O. Box 927, Elk Grove Village, IL 60009-0927.

BEWARE OF BABY WALKERS WITH WHEELS

The American Academy of Pediatrics has released a warning about baby walkers: 25,000 children between 5 and 15 months of age are treated in emergency departments annually for walker-related injuries. About one-fourth of walker-related injuries involve problems as severe as fractures and head injuries. The recommended alternative: a stationary walker—a play table with a rotating seat.

Some cough medicines are designed to quiet a dry, hacking cough while others—expectorants—are geared to clearing out the mucous causing the cough. Arden urges parents not to give children aspirin if flu symptoms appear, since aspirin use with the flu has been associated with the development of Reyes' Syndrome. She also encourages drinking lots of fluids, using throat lozenges to alleviate pain (for children six and older), and resting as much as possible.

For those planning to travel to the Southern Hemisphere any time from April through September, or to the tropics at any time of the year, the CDC recommends getting a flu vaccine before the trip if you've not been vaccinated in the fall or winter.

For those who want to do all they can to avoid the flu this year, Arden has just one word of advice: "Vaccinate."

Heavenly Delights STARGAZING

Imagine bundling up the whole family on a crisp evening and going to an empty field or a mountain top, a place out of the way of city lights. Pull out a good set of binoculars, or a telescope, and a star chart, and the whole family is likely to see everything from shooting stars to Jupiter's moons and the Milky Way.

"It's an incredibly fun adventure; it takes you above your worldly cares and it becomes an endless challenge to find new things," says John Mosley, program supervisor and astronomer at The Griffith Observatory in Los Angeles.

Mosley became interested in astronomy when he was nine years old. He remembers being fascinated with the sky: the incredible distances between things and the awe-inspiring size of the stars and planets.

For families interested in amateur astronomy, Mosley suggests contacting a local planetarium or observatory. Many provide newsletters, star charts, and information about interesting objects currently on view in the local sky. "A lot of astronomy is the appreciation of what you're looking at," says Mosley, "and you do benefit from some basic information."

Two magazines—Sky and Telescope and Astronomy—are available at most news stands. Both provide good basic information and articles on stars, planets, meteor showers and other viewable phenomena.

As for tools with which to view the night sky, Mosley recommends finding a local astronomy club through a planetarium, observatory, or newspaper listing. These groups usually schedule regular star parties on moonless nights, and they typically welcome visitors. It's a no-cost way to see if the family enjoys stargazing, and it also gives the family a chance to test out a variety of telescopes.

If your family likes star parties, the next step is to invest in basic equipment. Mosley recommends good binoculars or saving for a good telescope—which costs about $500 or more—rather than buying an inexpensive model. A less pricey telescope will soon be frustrating, since many of the interesting sights will be impossible to see. "Cheap telescopes don't work very well," Mosley explains. "And remember, telescopes don't burn out. They are a one-time investment."

Families that enjoy star-gazing can take the activity on vacation. There are scores of spots from which to view the heavens—from camp sites to world renowned observatories. Many offer special programs and provide tours of the research and viewing areas. And some families plan their vacations around astronomical events: Mosley has tickets to Turkey to view the total eclipse of the sun on August 11, 1999.

LEFTOVERS: THE DAYS AFTER

TURKEY LEFTOVERS ARE ONE OF THE MOST THANKFUL GIFTS OF THANKSGIVING.

Recollections of day-after, white meat sandwiches slathered with mayo and cranberries (maybe even some cold stuffing) are as memorable as Mom and...well...pumpkin pie.

Plan leftovers into the purchase of the big bird by figuring 1 1/2 pounds times the number of thanks givers at your table.

Remove turkey meat from the bone and refrigerate all leftovers in shallow containers within two hours of cooking. Use leftover turkey and stuffing within three to four days, gravy within one to two days. Or freeze these foods. That way you won't be gambling with safety when you gobble up that sandwich, soup, casserole—or even this pizza.

BBQ TURKEY PIZZA

- 1 1/2 cups bite-sized cooked turkey pieces
- 1/2 cup bottled barbecue sauce
- 1 (1 pound) Italian bread shell (such as Boboli)
- 1 cup shredded mozzarella
- 1/4 small red onion, thinly sliced
- 1 tablespoon chopped cilantro leaves
- 1 ounce thinly sliced smoked mozzarella

In a small bowl combine turkey and two tablespoons barbecue sauce. Turn to coat the turkey evenly.

Spread remaining barbecue sauce over bread shell to within 1 inch of the edge. Distribute shredded mozzarella over sauce. Top with the turkey, red onion slices, and cilantro. Arrange smoked mozzarella slices over the top. Bake at 450 degrees F, about 8 minutes, or until cheese is bubbly and just beginning to brown.

Yields 4 slices.

Kraft® Singles alone taste great, but they taste even better melted in a grilled cheese sandwich. Mmmm... Imagine that warm, creamy, gooey, crunchy taste. And every 3/4-ounce Kraft Single is made from 5 oz. of milk. So don't forget Kraft Singles for a yummy grilled cheese sandwich your kids will love.

THE BEST O

BY AMY BOOTHE GREEN

Today animators, fans, and historians fondly refer to them as "Frank & Ollie"—two enduring friends who created some of the most memorable characters in the history of Disney animation

THEIRS IS A FRIENDSHIP THAT SPANS MORE THAN 60 years, so it seems more than appropriate that Frank Thomas and Ollie Johnston, two of Walt Disney's pioneering animators, concluded their studio careers together while working on Disney's 24th animated classic, The Fox and the Hound. Friendship forms the key theme not only of that film, but also of Thomas and Johnston's professional and personal lives together.

"This friendship angle found its way into The Fox and the Hound, and it really became the heart of the story," Ollie Johnston says. "Because we've had a long friendship, you can see how the whole idea appealed to us."

Frank Thomas and Ollie Johnston met while attending Stanford University, where the two men were art students. At the height of the depression, in late 1934, Thomas was hired as an in-betweener at The Disney Studios. Johnston soon joined the payroll.

Their first big project was animating the dwarfs for Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, which garnered a special Academy Award in 1939. Together, Thomas and Johnston went on to create a long roster of immortal characters—Pinocchio, Bambi and Thumper, Captain Hook and Mr. Smee, the trio of fanciful fairies from Sleeping Beauty, Mowgli and Baloo, among others. The two were soon counted among the elite inner circle of studio animators, a group then irreverently referred to as Disney's "nine old men" of animation.

Since retiring in 1978, Frank Thomas and Ollie Johnston have probably enjoyed more publicity than during their nearly 50 years of creating Disney films together. Today, animators, fans, historians, and collectors fondly refer to them as "Frank and Ollie"; rarely is one name uttered without the other.

Following their days on the studio lot, Thomas and Johnston went on to write such critically-acclaimed books as Disney Animation: The Illusion of Life (reissued this fall by Hyperion Books), Bambi, Too Funny for Words, and, their most recent volume, Disney Villains.

Today Frank Thomas and Ollie Johnston are often found signing autographs at events ranging from Disneyana conventions to Disney film festivals. And though they haven't worked on a Disney film since The Fox and the Hound, their influence is not forgotten. For instance, this past summer's Mickey Mouse featurette, Runaway Brain, featured a new Disney villain named "Dr. Frankenollie"—a whimsical tribute paid to the elder animators by Disney's young men guard from the original Disney animators to a new generation. Today, the names of those young animators read like a Who's Who of Disney of animation. And their unique friendship is the subject of a documentary film created by Thomas' son Theodore, which will be released by Walt Disney Pictures later this year, titled—what else—Frank and Ollie.

As the two reminisce about The Fox and The Hound, their last picture together, they jog one another's memories and finish each other's thoughts.

Thomas recalls that when production began on The Fox and The Hound in the Spring of 1977, "I was coming up on 65, and Ollie was just behind me. We figured it was about retirement time."

"We knew we wouldn't be around for the whole three years of the film's production," Johnston adds, "and we decided to concentrate on developing characters, personalities, and story."

"It was essentially the younger animators who were going to animate the film because most of the other fellas had retired by then or left," Thomas says.

In Disney animation history, The Fox and The Hound signaled the changing of the heavyweights—Glen Keane, Randy Cartwright, Don Hahn, John Musker, Ron Clements. But during production of The Fox and The Hound they were fledgling talents. Thomas and Johnston say that working with the young animators was not only stimulating, but challenging.

"We enjoyed working with the young fellows," Thomas says. "They always gave you life, enthusiasm, desire for knowledge."

"Starting out, though, an animator's ego is pretty fragile," Johnston says. "We had to help bolster their egos while giving them help on what's wrong. It's hard enough to do it for yourself, let alone somebody else."

Thomas agrees with a chuckle. "Whenever a young animator came in with drawings, we'd make a bunch of sketches to show the principles of how it should be. Then we'd give the animator those drawings to keep. Usually he'd throw them away as soon as he got back to his room. But as a supervising animator that was your job—to make these drawings for them. Finally, when we knew we were going to do the book, instead of giving the drawings to them, we just put them in a drawer and said, 'When this drawer gets full, that's when we quit and retire.'"

Thomas and Johnston devoted a year to setting the stage for the young animators and then bowed out. The two welcomed retirement from the studio and the chance to move onto a new challenge: writing their first book together.

"We wanted to do something new that would be challenging and different," Thomas says. "We didn't feel like we were saying 'goodbye' to everyone we'd worked with, but felt like we were saying 'hello' by putting us all back together in a book."

The Fox and The Hound was released in 1981, breaking all box office records and grossing a whopping $50 million, more than any Disney animated feature before it.

"It showed that the new guys had an understanding of the principles that made pictures successful," Johnston says, "and that the audience loved what they did."

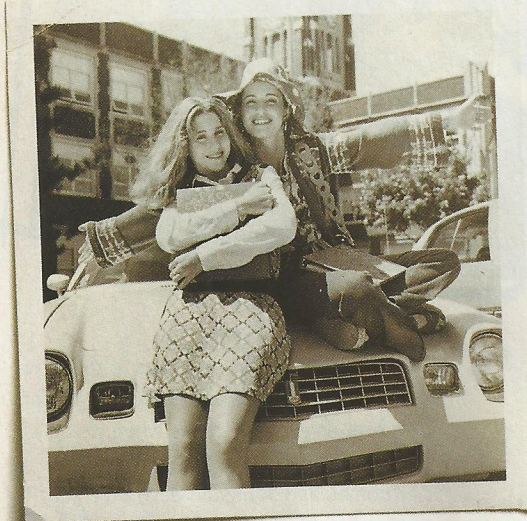

Thomas and Johnston's unique relationship lends dimension to the lyrics of The Fox and The Hound song "Best of Friends" (music written by Johnston's son, Richard):

"When you're the best of friends, sharing all that you discover, when the moments are past will the friendship last...Oh, I hope, I hope it never ends cause you're the best of friends."

RICHARD DREYFUSS' MAGNUM OPUS

In Mr. Holland's Opus, Richard Dreyfuss is a composer who teaches music in a public high school. On November 1, he becomes a celebrity presenter as The Walt Disney Company and McDonald's Present The American Teacher Awards

IN HIS NEW FILM

MR. HOLLAND'S OPUS, Richard Dreyfuss plays a fiercely ambitious young composer "who takes what he thinks is a temporary job teaching music in a public high school—and he ends up teaching there for 30 years." The actor adds, "It's a film, ultimately, about a man coming to a point in his life and not knowing whether he's been a success or not after years of struggling with his creativity. It's also a film that will leave people feeling sympathetic to teachers, teaching, and music."

While Mr. Holland's Opus premieres in theaters on November 3, Dreyfuss himself is on view on The Disney Channel on November 1: he's a celebrity presenter as The Walt Disney Company and McDonald's Present The American Teacher Awards. This annual salute to American education honors 36 teachers from 12 different fields of instruction.

Education is a subject close to Richard Dreyfuss' heart: he's the first to point out the debt he owes his own teachers. "I had a lot of wonderful teachers," Dreyfuss says. "Looking back, I can see that when I left school they hadn't just inspired me, they had shaped me as a person—they had introduced me to Shakespeare, to history, to English."

DREYFUSS' APPEARANCE AT The American Teacher Awards marks his second recent appearance on The Disney Channel. Subscribers will remember the actor as a special guest star on the Disney's Young Musicians Symphony Orchestra special. During the week-long music camp that preceded the Young Musicians concert, Dreyfuss visited the young talents, where he talked to them and showed them a portion of Mr. Holland's Opus.

"It was an awesome experience," Dreyfuss recalls. "To be surrounded by that much young talent. And talent that was so ferociously focused and committed. It was great for me—when they played I just sat back among them and pretended I was one of them."

That event capped off an extremely musical period for Dreyfuss, an actor known for bringing a formidable intelligence to any role—and for creating a host of memorable film characters. For his role in Mr. Holland's Opus, Dreyfuss admits "I came to music as a layman. The strenuous part of the role was learning how to simulate conducting an orchestra. There was a lot of listening, too," he adds, "which of course was great fun.

"Without an education," Dreyfuss says, "we can not take advantage of the only tool God gave us—our brain."

"I listened to Beethoven, Bach—a great deal of Bach—and 'Louie, Louie.' There's a lot of rock and roll in the movie," Dreyfuss hastens to add. "After all, the picture covers thirty years of a public school teacher's life—from 1963, just before the Kennedy assassination, to 1993."

Dreyfuss utters a quick laugh. "There was a long period there of listening to music when Gershwin sort of took over my life. I think if I could die and be reincarnated I would choose to come back as Michael Feinstein, and play piano and sing Gershwin and Cole Porter tunes."

The actor admits that he's occasionally fond of noodling a piano. "Noodling is the right word for it," he snorts. "I couldn't get a decent tune out of a piano for cash money."

Despite the technical preparation for his role, the Academy Award-winning actor admits that playing any part is "largely instinctual and largely inarticulate. It's a question of sidling up to a character. One dons another garment as it were. Let's face it, acting is really pretending to be other people."

That may be, but Dreyfuss admits to getting an extra charge out of pretending to be a teacher. "You can always look back on your life," he says "and pinpoint that one person who massively affected your life. That person is usually a teacher, a person who inspired you or introduced you to something that shaped your character.

"I want to be a teacher," Dreyfuss adds quietly. "I'd like to teach at the high school or the college level. It's an ambition."

So it's not surprising that when you ask Richard Dreyfuss why he believes education is important, the first response is a long cool silence. "Why is education important?" he echoes. "I think something is desperately wrong when that question is even asked. Without an education we can not take advantage of the only tool God gave us—our brain. There's also a sensual involvement. Education teaches us how to evaluate and appreciate the world we live in. Without an education, so much of the world slips by us in darkness."

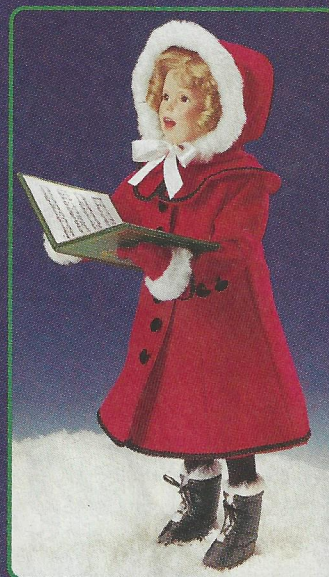

So what's next on the agenda for Richard Dreyfuss, following The American Teacher Awards and Mr. Holland's Opus? "I'm going to London to do a documentary on Albert Einstein," he says with relish. "And after that, I'll be working with Sidney Lumet on a courtroom drama." ♦

The Divine Harmony of Boyz II Men

BY MR. BONZAI

Romance, tenderness—and superb harmonies—mark this young group that's already made musical history

What happens when four young men sing with one heart? Millions around the world become enchanted by the magical sound of Boyz II Men.

Three Grammys, three American Music Awards, five Soul Train Awards, two NAACP Image Awards and two MTV Awards certify their universal appeal. Shawn Stockman, Nathan "Nate" Morris, Wanya (pronounced Wan-yay) Morris and bassman Michael McCary are today's embodiment of heavenly harmony. Now with the world premiere of The Disney Channel's new music special, Boyz II Men: Going Home (shot during their phenomenal 1995 "All Around the World Tour"), subscribers will not only experience the Boyz in action, but also get to know them as individuals with distinctive voices and personalities.

"We come out and do our very best," said Michael McCary of the Boyz approach to performing. "We try to get the crowd really excited and take them away from any problems they may have. We like to take their minds off everything else and have them concentrate solely on Boyz II Men."

Growing up in Philadelphia, the "Boyz" absorbed the essence of their hometown's historic sound. But they also paid tribute to The Temptations, The Supremes and Detroit's great Motown legacy. Drawing from more recent influences, the Boyz were especially fond of the intricate harmonies of "Take 6."

The fledgling group took their name from the New Edition's song "Boys To Men." Just two years after their first public appearance in 1988, success came with producer Dallas Austin and a song aptly titled "Motownphilly." What followed was success—a wild ride into the stratosphere, a ride to stardom that did nothing to turn either their heads, their hearts, or their values.

"We see our old friends and let them know we haven't forgotten where we came from," says Shawn. Beyond enjoying memories of the city that gave them their start, Boyz II Men are actively involved in charitable organizations reaching out to their old neighborhoods. "Groups like Big Brothers and Big Sisters really help a lot of the kids in Philly," Shawn adds. "Of course we're examples, but anyone is capable of being a role model. You don't have to be on TV or making hit records. Everyone has a responsibility to the kids. It's amazing how much of a difference it can make when you just sit down with a kid and talk."

The overwhelming success of Boyz II Men have made them the idols of young people all over the world. Their 1991 debut album Cooleyhighharmony sold over 8 million copies and dominated Billboard's charts for weeks. The single "End Of The Road," from the soundtrack of Eddie Murphy's Boomerang, was one of the biggest selling singles in history, surpassing Elvis Presley's "Heartbreak Hotel." Written and produced by Babyface, the song held at #1 for an incredible 13 weeks. "I'll Make Love To You," from their second album II, rocketed up the charts to become #1 in the United States and after 14 weeks broke their previous record, tying the all-time record set by Whitney Houston's "I Will Always Love You."

Seemingly unstoppable, the Boyz followed with "On Bended Knee," which bumped "I'll Make Love To You" from the #1 position. Joining Elvis and The Beatles, Boyz II Men are only the third instance of artists succeeding themselves at #1. The second album has surpassed the remarkable sales of their debut release, yielding another major hit, "Water Runs Dry." In their signature blend of vocal expression, the poetry of love comes to life in the Nineties.

"Let's don't wait 'til the water runs dry
We might watch our whole life pass us by
Let's don't wait 'til the water runs dry
We'll make the biggest mistake of our lives."

Romance and tenderness are undeniable qualities of the music of Boyz II Men. "We just write what we feel and it happens to have romantic overtones," says Shawn, adding, "romance used to be the focal point of what a relationship is all about. It might seem unrealistic today, but you can't deny the feeling of a really nice evening with someone you care about. Romance doesn't just mean flowers and candy. It means a special intimate type of situation."

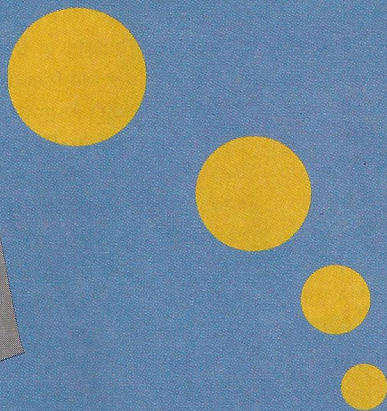

And what does it take for a boy to become a man in today's troubled world? Shawn smiles and answers, "It's responsibility, but a lot of elements come together to make a boy a man. You have to be responsible for your own actions and do what must be done regardless of your personal feelings. You do it because it's the right thing to do. You have to be strong enough to handle the repercussions of your decisions. We all make decisions that could be wrong, but you have to be able to accept it, brush off the dirt and keep going."

Their second album is dedicated to the late Khalil Rountree, their mentor and an inspirational figure much missed by the Boyz. A brief interlude written by Nathan and Shawn entitled simply "Khalil" is pure voice with a solo piano accompaniment:

"No one to guide me, I'm all alone.
No one to cry on, I need shelter from the rain—
To ease the pain of changing from boys to men."

About the author: Editor-at-large for Mix magazine, Mr. Bonzai has bemused the world of music since first sharing fish and chips with the boys at Abbey Road.

PLYMOUTH GRAND VOYAGER. THE

In redesigning the Plymouth Grand Voyager, we literally reinvented the wheel. And the seats they're part of.

Our rear bench seats now glide on smooth, nylon wheels, making them a cinch to move. (We call them Easy Out Roller Seats.™ You'll call them a dream.) Two levers release a seat and raise it up on wheels in a single move. Then just roll it back, lift it out and roll it away. You won't find this capability in any other mini-van, anywhere. But our seats don't sit down there. Depending on which seating package you choose, both rear and middle bench seatbacks now fold flat,* allowing you to carry a 4' x 8' sheet of plywood with the seats in and the liftgate closed. You won't find this capability on any other minivan, anywhere. (Beginning to see a pattern here?) Up front is another exclusive: cup holders that adjust to accommodate everything from a four-ounce baby bottle to a full one-liter jug. They even hold juice boxes and coffee mugs. And speaking of exclusives (and it's hard not to when the subject is Plymouth Grand Voyager),

IT SIMPLY SLIDES, ROLLS, FOLDS, PR

NEXT GENERATION OF THE MINIVAN.

getting to and from those seats is easier than ever, thanks to a second sliding door now available on the driver's side. It's the only one of its kind available today. Simply put, the new

Grand Voyager is better in every way. Outside, it's aerodynamically streamlined to cheat the wind. While inside, volume has been increased, giving you 11 percent more passenger and 27 percent more cargo space, more than in any other minivan. Visibility has been expanded, too, with a 32 percent larger windshield. The turning circle was reduced by more than three feet. Under the hood, Grand Voyager's available 3.3 and 3.8 liter engines are generous with cargo-hauling and load-pulling torque. And with their platinum-tipped spark plugs, they call for their first scheduled tune-up at 100,000 miles. And, of course, we've maintained our position as safety role models with standard dual front air bags,* four-wheel ABS and available integrated child safety seats. Plymouth Grand Voyager is literally a minivan full of firsts, bests and exclusives.

Hey, the competition has to have somebody to look up to. For more information, see your local Chrysler and Plymouth dealer, or just call 1-800-PLYMOUTH.

WORLD PREMIERE

A CELEBRATION OF PEOPLE

THIS WAS THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME," says Joshua M. Greene, the producer and co-writer of People, an extraordinary, music-filled animation special that receives its world premiere on The Disney Channel on October 24. Based on the acclaimed children's book by Peter Spier, People, says Greene, "is a celebration of our differences—our different cultures, our different ways of living, our different ways of worshipping. It's a celebration of diversity." The special tells the story of young Cara, who hopes to end the world's strife by making everyone alike. Her grandfather takes Cara on a journey of the imagination, introducing her to the many peoples and cultures found on our planet and showing Cara that it's differences that make us all special as human beings. Interestingly enough, diversity was also the theme of the creative team that Greene assembled for People. Principal animation of the show took place in Moscow, and Greene notes "that over 40 different nations were represented on the creative staff. We learned a lot about communicating—at times we tried sign language and dancing to communicate creative concepts." People has "been three years in the making," Greene adds. "It boasts eight different styles of animation, over 100,000 drawings, and 10 original songs." Indeed, matching beautiful voices to exquisite images, People features songs performed by Peabo Bryson, Vanessa Williams, Chaka Khan, Al Jarreau, Heavy D., Brenda Russell, Lea Salonga and Lebo M. (Voicing People's characters are actors Hume Cronyn and James Earl Jones.) "Anyone who creates works for young people longs for a project of this type," Greene says, "creating a program that positively affects and enhances young people as they are growing up."

THE ANGELIC ACTING OF CHRISTOPHER LLOYD

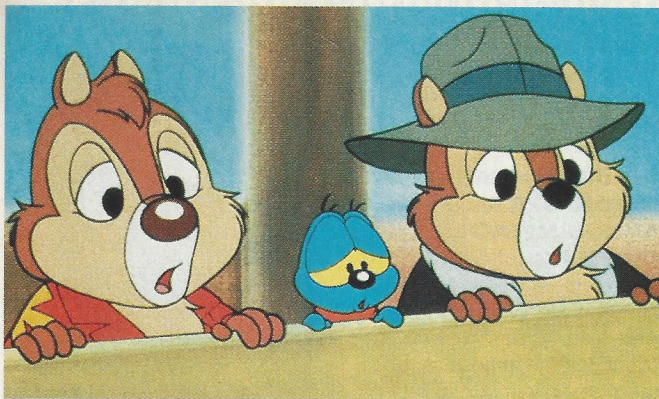

IN A RARE INTERVIEW IN 1989, CHRISTOPHER LLOYD observed that he became an actor because "I didn't have a knack for anything else." Since his Broadway debut in 1969, Lloyd has demonstrated that he possesses more than a knack for acting; he's become one of the finest performers of his generation. Lloyd made his film debut in 1975—he played one of the inmates in Milos Forman's Academy Award-winning film One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest. Since then he's created a host of brilliantly realized characters in film and on television, ranging from Dr. John Big Bootee (Buckaroo Banzai) and Dr. Emmet Brown (the Back to the Future series) to Reverend Jim on Taxi. And we're proud to point out that one of his three Emmys was awarded for a guest appearance on our original series Avonlea. But don't take our word for all of this: you can catch Christopher Lloyd on The Disney Channel on November 4, when we present a very special double-feature—the premieres of Angels in the Outfield followed by Rent-A-Kid. You may be familiar with the smash Disney comedy, but you may not have heard of Rent-A-Kid. It's a world premiere, it's a hilarious family comedy, and it pairs Christopher Lloyd with another brilliant comic talent: Leslie Nielsen.

40TH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION

THE MICKEY MOUSE CLUB STORY

OCTOBER 3 MARKS THE 40TH ANNIVERSARY of the Mickey Mouse Club. So here's some trivia: The only Disney color footage of the Mickey Mouse Club was shot 40 years ago for a 3-D movie that the Mouseketeers hosted in Disneyland. The footage hasn't been seen since 1955—until now. It's in The Mickey Mouse Club Story, an original Disney Channel special that premieres October 22 as part of our 40th anniversary celebration of the Mickey Mouse Club. The show is filled with rare and never-before-seen footage—including 16mm home movies shot by club leader Jimmie Dodd. The entire celebration begins October 2 with a very special festival: 40 episodes of The Original Mickey Mouse Club handpicked by the Mouseketeers themselves. The shows run at 11:30 p.m. (10:30 Central), Monday–Friday. And what would the MMC be without Spin and Marty? Well, we've created Spin and Marty: The Movie, premiering October 18. Finally, Disney Drive-In will feature vintage Mouseketeer-related movies and specials during October.

WORLD PREMIERE

ARLINGTON: ON HALLOWED GROUND

© LORI CRINKER

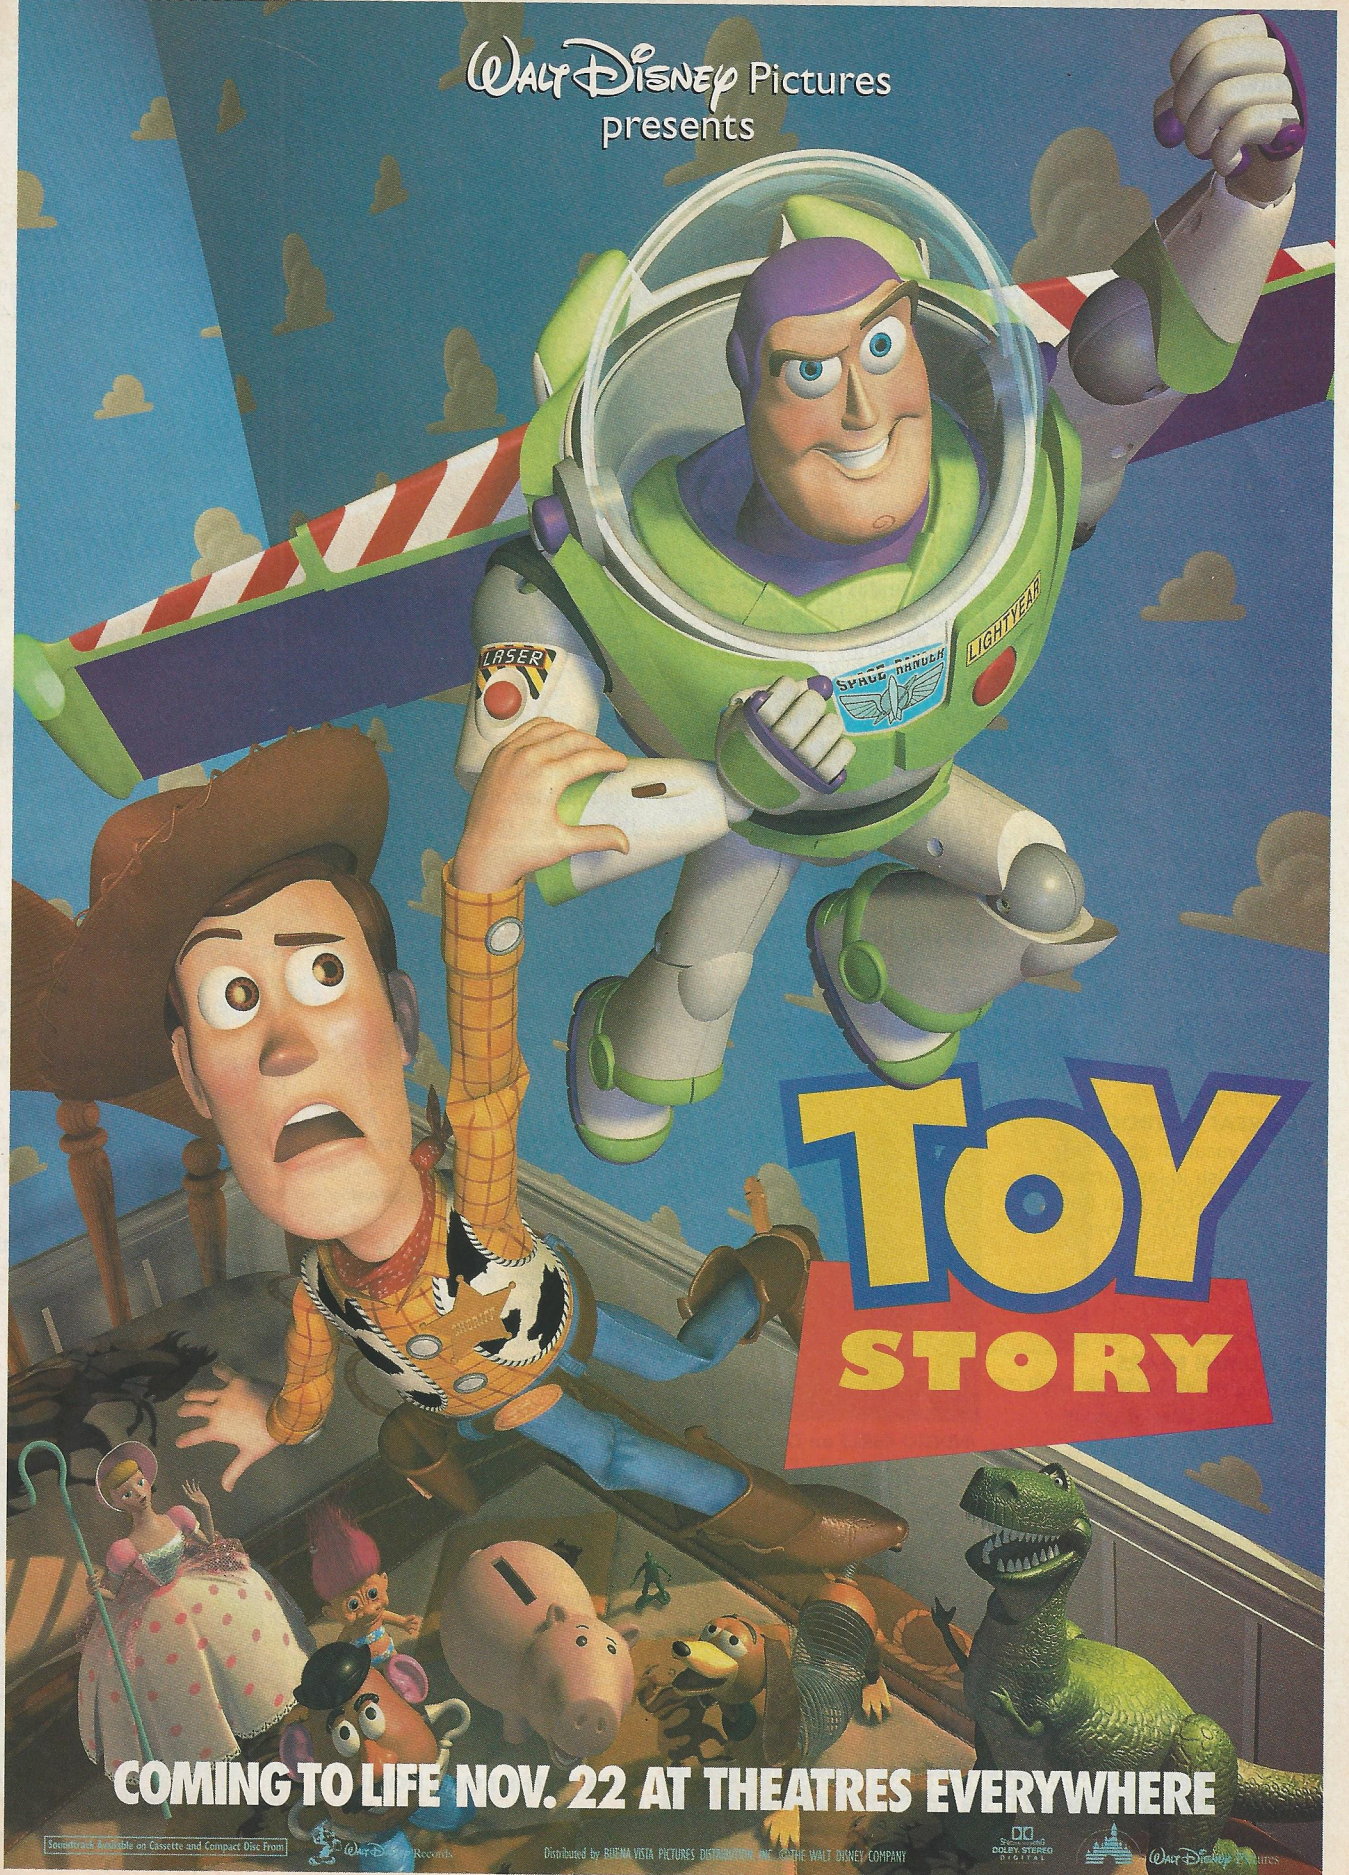

IT BEGAN AS AN ACT OF SPITE DURING THE CIVIL WAR: A Union general decreed that the army's dead would be buried around the stately, neo-classical plantation house named Arlington. Arlington belonged to Mary Custis Lee, the great granddaughter of Martha Washington and the wife of the Union's greatest enemy, Confederate General Robert E. Lee. From those beginnings sprang Arlington National Cemetery, where a host of noble Americans rest, including the dead from every conflict fought since the Civil War. On November 7, The American Legacy presents the world premiere of Arlington National Cemetery: A Mirror of America. This elegiac special uses historical and contemporary footage to trace the evolution of an American landmark. The program visits the graves of the notables—from Glenn Miller and Dashiell Hammett to John Fitzgerald Kennedy and Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis—as well as the famed Arlington memorials to Iwo Jima, the U.S.S. Maine, and the Challenger. And finally there is the most hallowed ground of all: the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.
